

Neurosurgery Law Series

presented by:

GARY S. GILDIN, J.D.

Dean Emeritus, Professor of Law, and Honorable G. Thomas and Anne G. Miller Chair in Advocacy the Dickinson School of Law of the Pennsylvania State University (since 1979)

Director, Center for Public Interest Law and Advocacy

Friday, September 16 10-11 AM	Overview of the Trial Process
Friday, September 23 3-4 PM	Demonstration of Cross Examination
Friday, October 14 3-4 PM	Steps Doctors Can Take to Minimize Being Sued and Held Liable for Malpractice

Location: H4151

Learning Format: In-Person and Online

Watch this Lecture Remotely:

Zoom: <https://pshealth.zoom.us/j/92857848746?pwd=UHlobjJlRjZTakhHNXJ4TTThPU3FyUT09>

Meeting ID: 928 5784 8746

Passcode: 229083

One tap mobile +17866351003,,92857848746#,,,,*229083# US (Miami)

+19292056099,,92857848746#,,,,*229083# US (New York)

Educational Series Objectives:

- Get familiar with the terminology and anatomy of the medical negligence lawsuit.
- Enhance the understanding of who decides whether the treatment of the patient violated the standard of care.
- What variables will be used in the decision of whether the treatment violated the standard of care.
- What adjustments can be made to minimize the chance of being held liable for medical negligence, and more importantly, minimize the chance they're sued in the first place.
- Explore why medical negligence lawsuits are viewed as the appropriate means of deterring and redressing medical error.

PennState Health

PennState
College of Medicine