WELCOME FROM THE DEAN

Danielle M. Conway
Dean and Donald J. Farage
Professor of Law

Dear Lutie Sisters,

On behalf of the faculty, staff, students, and administration, I welcome you to Penn State Dickinson Law. We are thrilled and honored to host the 17th Annual Lutie A. Lytle Black Women Law Faculty Workshop and Writing Retreat! I hope you enjoy your stay in Hershey and in Carlisle, Pennsylvania!

Dickinson Law is the oldest law school in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the fifth oldest in the United States. As Dean, I am eager to introduce you to our school, the communities that embrace us, and the people who keep our learning environment vibrant and relevant.

During our gathering one year ago, the Supreme Court of the United States overturned Roe v. Wade and with it a half century of protection for the right to terminate a pregnancy. The Supreme Court is now poised to issue decisions in Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard and the companion case Students for Fair Admissions v. UNC, both of which are expected to change the landscape for the modest consideration of race, among many other factors, in university admissions. In facing these challenges to our very existence, the gathering at Lutie reinforces our commitment to continue the struggle for justice and equality while providing support and encouragement to one another as we strive, through our voices and our scholarship, to educate our students, colleagues, and communities about the value of our perspectives in bringing dignity and humanity to the legal academy and the profession. Our scholarly contributions to legal discourse on these and other issues affirm Black women's heritage and genealogy as teachers and learners in the legal academy.

Lutie A. Lytle was a woman before her time, and her extraordinary legacy lives through this annual gathering. As you all know, Dean Angela Onwuachi-Willig organized the first Lutie A. Lytle Workshop in 2007 at the University of Iowa College of Law. The previous summer, several black women law professors organized a small workshop at Michele Goodwin's Chicago home. Through the years, we have grown from untenured professors to administrators, directors, deans, provosts, and presidents. We have courageously confronted and contested bias in all its forms. Undeterred by these challenges, we have persevered and prevailed in our efforts to create inclusive, diverse, and equitable learning environments where everyone can feel like they belong. We honor our namesake's legacy with our ascension, our deeds, and our support of the Lutie Legacy Society, which is now a 501(c)(3).

As we gather to share our scholarship and to celebrate our achievements, I reflect upon how I recently attended my first Lutie Workshop last year. After informally engaging in sisterhood for over 25 years, I experienced inestimable joy at being welcomed into the Lutie sisterhood and being embraced for what I have contributed to the deep well of scholarship in the place and space where Black women law faculty draw love and inspiration to enhance their works.

I lift up the following members of the Dickinson Law team, each of whom provided critical planning and event support for the Lutie Workshop and Writing Retreat: Shaakirrah R. Sanders, Visiting Professor of Law (effective July 1, 2023, Associate Dean for Antiracism and Critical Pedagogy, Professor of Law, and Lewis H. Vovakis Distinguished Faculty Scholar); Sarah J. Williams, Assistant Professor of Law; Andrea J. Martin, Assistant Professor of Law; TaWanda H. Stallworth, Program Manager, Antiracist Development Institute; and Venus L. Ricks, Education Coordinator, Antiracist Development Institute. I also thank the entire Dickinson Law team for their hard work and devotion to this effort, with special thanks to Devan Drabik-Frey, Seth McGeorge, Ian Ulsh, Ellen Hanna, Justin Kulp, Doris Orner, Jessica Burd, Karlisma Souders, and Sherry Whitlock. Thank you to our committee volunteers, especially the works-in-progress committee, including Jane Cross, Andrea Dennis, and Daiquiri Steele and co-chairs Andrea Martin and Portia Pedro. Additionally, I am incredibly grateful to Benita Smith for her tremendous support and attention to shepherding countless large and small tasks to completion. Finally, I thank our sponsors for their commitment, generosity, and support.

Congratulations to our conference honoree and keynote speaker, Professor Carliss Chatman, and thank you to our guest speaker, Dr. Janet Dewart Bell. We cherish and treasure the opportunity to host this conference and to reinforce your individual and collective efforts to achieve justice and equality in the legal academy and the legal profession.

Warmest,

2023 LUTIE A. LYTLE OUTSTANDING SCHOLAR AWARD

Carliss Chatman

2023 Lutie A. Lytle Outstanding
Scholar Award Honoree

Carliss Chatman is an Associate Professor at Washington and Lee University School of Law specializing in the fields of corporate law, commercial law, ethics, and civil procedure. Professor Chatman brings 11 years of legal practice as a commercial litigation attorney in Houston, Texas. In practice, she focused on trials, appeals, and arbitration in pharmaceutical, healthcare, mass torts, product liability, and oil, gas, and mineral cases. In addition to negotiating settlements and obtaining successful verdicts, Professor Chatman has analyzed and drafted position statements regarding the constitutionality of statutes and the impact of statutory revisions for presentation to the Texas Legislature.

Professor Chatman teaches an array of business law, commercial law, and ethics classes including Contracts and Sales & Leases; Agency and Unincorporated Entities, Corporations, Business Associations, and Securities Regulation; Professional Responsibility; a Transactional Skills Simulation course, with a Mergers and Acquisitions focus that incorporates corporate law and UCC Article 9; and a Start-UP Practicum that helps launch Black-owned businesses. She is the 2021 Recipient of the Derrick A. Bell, Jr. Award, presented by the Association of American Law Schools Section on Minority Groups; the 2020 Recipient of the Jessine A. Monaghan Fellowship, an award for experiential education, given in recognition of contributions to the transactional component of the Law School's experiential program; and the 2020 Recipient of the Lewis Prize for Excellence in Legal Scholarship, an award given to recognize outstanding legal scholarship supported by summer grants.

Professor Chatman is an Amazon Best-Selling author of "Companies are People Too", a children's book on corporate personhood, using personhood as a framework to educate and inform general audiences about the nuances of status and the fundamentals of business and commerce. Professor Chatman is also the co-author of the casebook "Business Organization: An Experiential Approach" with Carla Reyes, published with the Carolina Academic Press in 2022.

Professor Chatman is prolific on social media and has given academic lectures on corporate governance and personhood, teaching diverse groups of students, and legal ethics. She has produced panels and her podcast—Getting Common—is available on Spotify, Apple Music, and replays via Voice America online radio. In addition to her more traditional scholarship, Professor Chatman writes for broader audiences in publications including: Slate, Time Magazine, CNN Online, TheGrio, Barron's, and the Washington Post, with features in press pieces on Forbes and in the New York Times, and with media appearances on CBS News and CBS Radio, Propublica, Reuters, and NHK.

Professor Chatman is a 2004 graduate of the University of Texas School of Law, where she was a member of the Texas Journal of Women and the Law, and served on the Student Recruitment and Orientation Committee. She received her bachelor's degree in 2001 from Duke University with honors in English.

2023 LUTIE A. LYTLE GUEST SPEAKER

Janet Dewart Bell
Communications Strategist and Management Consultant

JANET DEWART BELL is a communications strategist and management consultant with a multimedia background, as well as experience in policy advocacy, strategic planning, fund development, media training, and education. She is a social justice advocate, activist, executive coach, and motivational speaker, with a doctorate in Leadership and Change from Antioch University. She is the author of “Carving Out a Humanity: Race, Rights, and Redemption,” and “Lighting the Fires of Freedom: African American Women in the Civil Rights Movement.”

Among her accomplishments are an Emmy® for outstanding individual achievement (CBS-TV affiliate in Washington, DC) and programming for National Public Radio honored with a Peabody award, considered the highest award in broadcasting.

She has been a key strategist and senior executive at a number of national organizations, including The Opportunity Agenda, PolicyLink, the National Urban League, the National Committee on Household Employment, and National Public Radio. She was Director of Communications and Public Relations for District Council 37, the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, in New York City. As a Visiting Research Professor at the University of Pittsburgh, she developed and taught a course on Effective Advocacy and co-taught a constitutional law course with her husband Professor Derrick Bell.

She developed and managed The Opportunity Agenda’s acclaimed Communications Institute, a four-day, intensive multimedia training for social justice advocates. As Director of Communications at PolicyLink, Bell was instrumental in developing the organization’s collaborative approach to advocacy and communications and developed the trademark “Lifting up what works.®” As Director of Communications at the National Urban League, she was the League’s chief communications strategist and editor of The State of Black America. As part of AFL-CIO delegations, she has taught trade unionists in Morocco and Tunisia. She was the Chairperson of the District of Columbia Commission for Women and represented the District at the International Conference of Women in Nairobi, Kenya.

Bell established the Derrick Bell Lecture Series on Race in American Society at the New York University School of Law, now in its twenty-sixth year. In 2012, along with other lead donors, she helped establish the Derrick Bell Fund for Excellence at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law, Professor Bell’s alma mater, to honor his memory and legacy. She has also endowed the Janet Dewart Bell scholarship at Baruch College, where she earned a Master’s degree.

Bell is the founder and president of LEAD InterGenerational Solutions, Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to developing intergenerational leaders as social change agents. She is the board chair for the Women’s Media Center and serves on the boards of CancerCare and the Southern Center for Human Rights.

She is an ordained elder, serving at First Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, an intentionally inclusive and diverse Christian community, where all are welcome.
