OUR MISSION AND CORE PRINCIPLES

As the oldest law school in Pennsylvania and as one of the oldest law schools in the country, Dickinson Law's mission remains similar to its founding vision: to prepare students of law thoroughly for the practice of their profession.

While remaining steeped in the tradition and values that have distinguished the Law School from its inception, Dickinson Law has redefined how it is preparing students to lead their profession in a competitive and evolving 21st century legal landscape.

Dickinson Law has adopted the following core principles:

- I. To vest in our students the entire range of concrete lawyering skills necessary to most effectively perform as legal professionals at the local, state, national, transnational, and international levels in the 21st Century.
- II. To engage in a constant quest for knowledge and wisdom that we can share not only with our students, but with the legal profession, scholars, policy makers, and others, consistent with Penn State's role as a world-class research university.
- III. To willingly contribute our services to the university and to local, state, national, and international efforts to improve global understanding and the lives and well-being of our students and the worlds in which they will live.
- IV. We pledge that on a daily basis we will strive to foster a sense of community and mutual support between and among faculty, students and staff, and in our interactions outside the Law School.

STUDYING AT DICKINSON LAW

All students in attendance at Penn State Dickinson Law should be familiar with the J.D. Student Academic Handbook, which is the primary source for Dickinson Law's academic policies and protocols. LL.M., S.J.D., and Exchange students are expected to understand and adhere to all academic policies and protocols. Additionally, the LL.M. students and S.J.D. students have supplemental academic handbooks for specific program policies and protocols.

Meeting Your Professors

At Dickinson Law, our faculty welcome individual meetings by appointment or visiting during the office hours listed on the course syllabi for their courses. Most Dickinson Law professors also have an "open door" policy, meaning that you can visit them when their office doors are open. The proper way to address your professors is by calling them "Professor," followed by their family name. Learn about our faculty and their professional impact.

Honor Code

Dickinson Law does not tolerate any form of academic misconduct. Because policies on academic conduct at U.S. schools may be different than those in other countries, please be sure to review the Dickinson Law Honor Code, available in the J.D. Student Academic Handbook, about expectations on how students will conduct themselves during examinations, reporting information to the law school, etc. Please note, with importance, the provisions on plagiarism and the consequences for this honor code violation. Students who fail to comply with the Honor Code may be subject to academic discipline up to and including expulsion from the Law School.

Academic Calendar

Review the academic calendar to check when classes and exams begin, the deadlines to add or drop classes, and a list of school holidays.

Course Descriptions

Please visit the website for course offerings and brief descriptions. Note that not all courses are offered on a regular basis and that many will not be available in any particular semester. Tentative lists of classes to be offered can be found here.

Class Recordings

Most classes at Dickinson Law are recorded, and each professor has a policy governing student access to recordings. Students may ask their professors to provide access to class recordings via the request feature on the Canvas course page. Students are not permitted to make their own recordings of any part of a class by any means without prior express authorization of the faculty member. Unauthorized recording, distribution, or use of a class recording may be a violation of the Dickinson Law Honor Code. Please read the class recording policy on the syllabus for each of your courses, particularly during the coronavirus pandemic.

Textbooks

Students have a variety of options to buy, sell, or rent textbooks. You may purchase your textbooks from the Penn State bookstore and have them delivered to the Law School. Review instructions for ordering textbooks here. Students may also borrow textbooks, upon availability, from the Sharing Shelf. Used textbooks may also be available on Amazon and related online vendors. Be sure to order the correct editions. As advanced reading is often required, students must acquire all required textbooks well ahead of the start of classes.

Academic Assistance & Accommodations

At Dickinson Law, we are always willing to assist international students with the adjustment to American academic life. Please direct questions to the Office of Student Services.

Student Services also assists students with requests for academic accommodations. Follow these steps to request accommodations related to any disability.

International students enrolled in the LL.M., S.J.D. or Exchange programs for whom English is not a first language may request additional time on timed, in-person assessments. Students in all programs for whom English is not a first language may request the use of a hard-copy English language and/or translation dictionaries during time, in-person assessments.

Requests will be considered by Assistant Dean for Academic and Student Services. Please see Accommodations Request \(Language Related\) for more information.

Library Information

Students have access to vast library resources available through Penn State. The H. Laddie Montague Jr. Law Library at Dickinson Law provides students with a place to research and study. To learn more about its services, visit the Law Library located inside Trickett Hall. The law librarians are happy to assist students new to American legal research.

The Dickinson Law Library provides students with access to premier online databases including: LexisNexis, Wolters Kluwer, Weest Academic, HeinOnline, etc. Law students can also access many other legal databases and research guides.

Bosler Library is the public library located on High Street in downtown Carlisle. In addition to lending books for free, they have Blu-Ray DVDs, books on tape, and e-books available to borrow. A driver's license or item of mail with a Cumberland County address is sufficient to obtain a library card.

The Dickinson College library is also open to the public, and Dickinson Law students may borrow books and DVDs.

Exams and Grades

Each course will be graded on different bases: some will require students to write papers, some may have multiple shorter examinations, some may have only a final examination, etc. Students must therefore look at the syllabus for each of their courses for information on the bases for grading in that course. For courses that require students to take a final examination, please be sure to read the "Final Exam Information" section in the Student Academic Handbook available on MyDL. For information on grading standards, how to receive grades, see the "Grading and Evaluation" section in the Student Academic Handbook available on MyDL. ### Getting Involved

One of the best ways to adjust to life at Dickinson Law is to become involved with one of the many opportunities available to students. Students play a variety of intramural sports including flag football, soccer, frisbee, basketball, and softball. During the fall semester, Dickinson Law hosts an intraschool moot court competition at the Law School. During the spring semester, you can observe the Dickinson Law moot court teams prepare for competition, observe the law review symposium, or serve as a volunteer witness for the National Mock Trial Team. Be sure to watch the events calendar.

At Dickinson Law, there are also many student organizations that will allow you to become involved. Student organizations make it easier to meet your classmates and learn about areas of the law or other interests that you have. If you arrive during the fall semester, be sure to attend the student organization fair at the beginning of the semester. There is no limitation on how many student organizations a student can join. Students may also apply for Executive board positions.

Working on Campus

Employment for F-1 and J-1 students is limited, and working without permission is a violation of status and potentially a deportable offense. On-campus employment is permitted with certain restrictions. International students can work on-campus up to 20 hours during the semester and up to 40 hours during the winter and spring breaks. Please contact International Programs and Graduate Education for more information, at DickinsonGradEd@psu.edu.

Working off Campus

Off campus employment for F-1 and J-1 students is restricted and working without permission may be a violation of status and a deportable offense. F-1 and J-1 students may not work off-campus without permission from International Student and Scholar Advising \(ISSA\) within Penn State Global. Dickinson Law permissions are necessary.

In particular, F-1 students should become familiar with Curricular Practical Training (CPT) and Optional Practical Training (OPT). CPT is potentially available to F-1 students who have been enrolled full-time for one academic year. Students in one-year graduate programs (i.e., LL.M. and M.L.S.) are generally ineligible for CPT. Students who have been in F-1 status for at least one academic year are eligible for OPT which is temporary employment in their field of study for purposes of gaining practical experience. Students are eligible for an additional year of OPT at each higher degree level (i.e., Master’s, PhD.).

Penn State offers workshops semester which explain the different types of off-campus work permissions available to F-1 and J-1 students.

Food on Campus

Although there is no campus cafeteria, there are vending machines located throughout campus for your convenience.

Penn State Dickinson Law Merchandise

Dickinson Law merchandise can be purchased in the campus store in Room 020. Please email Director of Business Services Karlisma Souders to schedule a time to visit the store on weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

RESIDENTIAL REQUIREMENTS

Social Security Number

A Social Security number (SSN) is issued mainly to record workers earnings over their lifetimes. Students holding F-1 and J-1 status who are employed in the United States must apply for a Social Security number. Dependents in F-2 status are not eligible for a Social Security number. (Students who do not work on campus but who receive a taxable scholarship may apply for an Individual Tax Identification Number (ITIN) for tax purposes).

To receive a Social Security number, the Social Security Administration will require you to show that you are eligible to work in the United States, that you are a full-time student, that you have received a formal offer of on-campus employment, and that you have been authorized for off-campus employment through Curricular Practical Training, Optional Practical Training, or Academic Training. A Social Security number is not required to obtain a driver's license, cell phone, credit card, insurance, admission to an academic institution or for other "non-work" reasons. The Social Security Administration must also verify your immigration documents and status with the government before issuing the Social Security number.

Note that new students may not apply for an SSN earlier than 10 business days after arriving in the United States. The Social Security number itself is not a work permit.

Alumni Information

Dickinson Law graduates have access to both Penn State and Dickinson Law alumni networks. To become involved with the Dickinson Law alumni community, email the Office of Alumni Relations.

On-Campus Employment

If you are working on campus, you must email Financial Officer Doris Orner, inform her that you are an international student, and request that a verification letter containing the following information be forwarded to International Programs and Graduate Education:

- First and last name as it appears on your I-20
- The department you will be working for
- The name of the position you were hired for (job title)
- The date you will begin working (start date)
- Number of hours per week you will be working (approximate)

Students with On-Campus Employment must complete the on-campus verification process with the Registrar. Students may also need to apply in person for a Social Security number at a local Social Security Administration office. Apply no earlier than 30 days before your scheduled employment start date.

Bring with you:

- Completed and signed ISS Social Security Verification Form
- Valid passport (along with old passport if it contains your F-1 visa)
- I-94 card or a copy of your F-1 admission stamp in your passport and a printout of your electronic I-94 information, which can be obtained at <https://i94.cbp.dhs.gov/i94/#/home>
- Form SS-5

Obtaining a Driver's License

Each U.S. state issues photo identification cards and driver's licenses for its residents under its own laws. Regulations and application processes vary from state to state. In Pennsylvania, PennDOT is the government agency who has the authority to issue ID cards and driver's licenses.

Pennsylvania honors a valid foreign driver's license with an international driving permit for as long as the foreign license and/or international driving permit are not expired. Generally, holders of foreign licenses must apply for a Pennsylvania learner's permit if they wish to obtain a Pennsylvania driver's license. Some nationals may be exempt from applying for a PA learner's permit (e.g., South Korea, Spain, etc.).

The basic steps of the application process are as follows:

- Obtain and study a driver's manual from the PennDOT website.
- Undergo a physical examination by a certified health professional – for example, at UPMC Urgent Care, 1175 Walnut Bottom Rd, Carlisle.
- Apply for a learner's permit with the appropriate form, fee, and the same documentation required for the ID card (see below). At this time, you must pass a vision test and a test of your knowledge of the material in the driver's manual. If you successfully obtain a learner's permit, you have limited driving rights.
- After a waiting period, you can apply for a driver's license by taking a road test. You will need to borrow a car and be accompanied by the licensed owner who can prove that the car is insured, registered, and safe.

Obtaining a Pennsylvania State Photo ID Card

The application procedure for an ID card generally consists of completing a form, paying a fee (check or money order) and providing the following documentation:

- All your immigration documentation (i.e., passport and visa sticker, I-20 or DS-2019 form, I-94 form, etc.) to prove your identity and status
- Passport
- Current enrollment verification (request this from the Dickinson Law Registrar)
- Your Social Security Card or letter from Social Security indicating they have not decided yet, or Social Security rejection letter (if you are not working, you are ineligible for a Social Security card and can obtain a rejection letter)
- Two (2) proofs of your Carlisle address, such as tax records, bank statements, bills (except mobile phone), etc. (Students: the enrollment verification letter from International Services will include your address and can serve as one proof.)

Apply at the PA DMV in Carlisle Stonehedge Square, 950 Walnut Bottom Road

For the most accurate instructions on how to apply for an ID card or driver's license, visit the PennDOT website.

Car Insurance Requirements

Pennsylvania law requires that all Pennsylvania drivers hold both medical benefits (no-fault) coverage and liability car insurance. For more information, consult the Pennsylvania DMV.

Taxes

In the United States, the general rule is that you do not need to file a tax return in any year in which:

- You did not receive any income while you were in the U.S.;
- You received income that is exempted by a tax treaty between the U.S. and your home country; or
- You are a candidate for a degree and any scholarship or fellowship you received was used only for tuition, fees, and required books and other equipment.

LIVING IN CARLISLE

Carlisle was settled by Scots-Irish immigrants in 1751 and became the center of their settlement in the Cumberland Valley. Carlisle was incorporated as a borough on April 13, 1782, and was the site of a number of historical events during the early years of U.S. history. The borough was shelled by the Confederates on July 1, 1863, during the Battle of Carlisle, part of the Gettysburg Campaign of the American Civil War. Carlisle was well-known at one time for the Carlisle Indian Industrial School, which trained Native Americans from all over the United States; one of its notable graduates was sports hero Jim Thorpe. Carlisle is also home to Dickinson College, established in 1773 and later chartered in 1783, making it the first college founded in the newly recognized United States.

Dickinson Law, founded in 1834 and affiliated with Dickinson College until 1914, is the fifth oldest law school in the United States and the oldest law school in Pennsylvania. It remained independent for over 80 years, until it merged with The Pennsylvania State University in 1997, becoming the Penn State Dickinson School of Law.

The U.S. Army War College, located at the Carlisle Barracks, caters to high-level military personnel and civilians, and prepares them for strategic leadership responsibilities. The Carlisle Barracks is the oldest installation in the United States Army and the Army's most senior military educational institution. Carlisle is the home of the U.S. Army Military Heritage Museum.

CULTURAL DIFFERENCES

Cultural Adjustment

The key to dealing with culture shock is to remember that this is a natural process that accompanies being in a new country for an extended period. It is very important to give yourself time to adjust to your new surroundings, remain positive, and not become discouraged. The UK Council for International Student Affairs has a diagram that helps to explain the different stages of culture shock.

Here are a few ways to find support and channel your homesickness into something positive:

- Represent your country at events.
- Talk with your international student adviser.
- Join a club or society you're passionate about.
- Meet with other international students who are probably going through the same thing.
- Visit and familiarize yourself with nearby places of interest.

You might even experience reverse culture shock when you return to your home country. There are a few ways you can counter this:

- Keep a journal of your time abroad and compare your experiences to those in your country.
- Stay informed of the news at home.
- Keep in contact with people from home with regular video calls.
- When you return, it may be helpful not to overload friends and family with your stories of "when I was in the United States ...". Instead, engage with local international groups or other people who have had similar experiences.

Cultural Differences

While you may not think it at first, there are numerous cultural aspects of the United States that you will likely encounter:

- Tipping. "Tips," or gratuities, are payments you are expected to make in addition to the bill for many service providers. Tips are usually based on a percentage of your bill: 15-20% for restaurants, 10% for taxis, 10% for hairdressers, $1-2 per drink and $1-3 per suitcase carried—not tipping is considered the worst of faux pas.
- Bargaining. Americans generally do not bargain over prices for anything except for very expensive items such as houses or vehicles. It is best not to try to bargain when buying something and instead to expect to pay the price listed for the item.
- Personal Lives. Americans are very open people and like to share a lot about themselves.
- Humor. Humor is probably one of the most difficult things to understand when entering a new culture; do not feel frustrated if you do not understand some of the jokes that you will hear. Americans have strong senses of humor and like to tease each other. Feel free to let others know if they have offended you but try to do so in as gentle a way as possible.

- Local Mindsets. Due to the country's size, news and culture are focused more locally than globally. Do not be surprised if the Americans you meet do not know much about your home country or even have some wrong ideas about it. Feel free to share information about your country and its culture and history. Americans will be eager to learn from you.
  - Values. Punctuality, individual responsibility, a strong work ethic, politeness, and proud patriotism are all valued in the U.S. Know that Americans expect everyone to wait patiently in line or to “wait their turn” for everything—do not try to move in front of someone who was waiting before you.
  - Religion. The United States was founded on the principle of religious freedom and is therefore religiously diverse. Religious faith is common and widespread across the United States. Christianity is predominant. Certain parts of the U.S. tend to be less religiously diverse and are usually more conservative. Students from these areas may talk openly about their beliefs and can be shocked if you do not share them. At Dickinson Law, your beliefs will be respected no matter what they are, and opportunities will be provided for you to engage with your faith or lack thereof.
  - Politics. Don't be afraid to express your political beliefs on campus but remember to be polite. Americans can be self-critical but will take offense if they think you are insulting the political concept of the United States. You will notice that Americans become particularly politically minded and patriotic during a presidential election. If you happen to be in America during an election year, ask your American friends to explain the two-party system. Presidential candidates often tour certain universities to speak to students during the campaign.
